Application Deadline: 9am (GMT), Tuesday May 1, 2018

The financial crisis and the subsequent economic recovery were associated with spectacular price movements in a number of asset markets. Understanding these fluctuations and their interactions with the macro economy remains challenging. The conference seeks to bring together innovative work advancing our knowledge of macro-financial linkages. Theoretical and empirical contributions are both welcome. The program of the first conference in this series is available here.

Mannheim is located close to Frankfurt airport (30 mins train ride). The conference dates are adjacent to the dates of the European Economic Association Congress/Econometric Society European Meeting, which takes place August 27-31, 2018 in Cologne, Germany. Cologne is 1.5 hours by train from Mannheim.

The following participants have confirmed to be keynote speakers at the conference:

Nicola Gennaioli (Bocconi University & CEPR)

Stefan Nagel (Booth School of Business, University of Chicago & CEPR)
